

COAL PRODUCTION HOLDS TO LEVEL 4,500,000 TONS

Supply Newly Mined Is 17,000,- 000 Tons Below That During 1912 Strike.

DEMAND NOT YET ACTIVE

In Fields Unaffected by the Strike; Unbilled Cars Remain a Feature of The Situation; Beehive Coke Shows A Definite Upward Trend in Output.

Special to The Courier.
WASHINGTON, May 23.—Having risen close to the 4,500,000-ton mark, the production of soft coal shows no further increase, says the United States Geological Survey. From the returns so far received it is unlikely that the output of the present week will equal that of last week. Production of anthracite remains practically zero.

The revised figures for the sixth week of the strike, May 8-13, indicate 4,121,000 tons of bituminous coal and 7,000 ton; of anthracite. Up to the close of the sixth week the total output since the strike began was 23,826,000 tons of bituminous coal and 39,000 tons of anthracite, a grand total of all conq of 2,865,000 tons. It is significant to compare this feature with the output in the corresponding period of the 1919 strike. At that time the anthracite mines were working to capacity and the 11,816,000 tons which they produced, added to 29,329,000 tons contributed by the bituminous mines which remained in operation, gave a total for the six weeks of 41,145,000 tons. Measured against the supply of newly mined coal in the earlier strike, the present strike is thus some 17,000,000 tons behind.

During the week, May 8-13, the seventh week of the strike, production had so far not equalled that of the sixth week. A temporary decrease on Tuesday was followed by an increase on Wednesday, but on no day this week have loadings thus far equalled the high point of the week before.

The record of production therefore suggests no marked change in the number of men on strike. No further increase is reported in shipments out of Southeast Kentucky and Tennessee, the only district where any considerable able number of striking union miners have gone back to work. In Pennsylvania there is little change in the non-union districts affected by the strike, except for a very slight increase in shipments from the Connellsville coke region.

That the market has quickened is indicated by rising spot prices. Some districts are now producing at a maximum, but in others, particularly the Southern Appalachians and the fields of the Rocky Mountain states not affected by the strike demand is not yet active enough to call out full-time production.

Practically complete returns for all of the roads give the daily average number of coal loads unconsigned for the week ended May 13 at 10,753 cars of bituminous coal against a maximum of 20,730 in the week ended April 8. In five weeks' time the number of unbidden loads has thus been

GREAT DISCOVERY BY YOUTH
Experiments of Seventeen Year Old Saxon Gave Dresden China to an Appreciative World.

A king's faith in the transmutation of metals and the skill of an apothecary's seventeen-year-old son caused the discovery of the celebrated Dresden china.

The king was Augustus of Saxony and the boy was Bottger, who composed a treatise that was supposed to be capable of being transformed into gold.

But being a genius wasn't much fun for Bottger for the king locked him in a complete laboratory and refused him freedom.

Ottobach, the chemist, studied the manuscript almost unbalanced the boy's mind. "He fumed at the mouth and knocked his head against the wall and trembled so violently that two soldiers could not hold him. And he drank 12 cans of beer a day without getting drunk."

It was thought advisable to move the boy to Dresden and give him certain liberty. While continuing his experiments there he discovered the Meissen porcelain, commonly called Dresden china. This discovery re-joyiced Augustus and he spent large sums in constructing the Japan palace. Many workmen came from Delft to make the new ware and soon all Europe was buying Meissen.

In gratitude the king gave Bottger his freedom, a ring with his effigy two apes, a young bear and credit with the royal banker and in addition the profits from the porcelain factory for life.

But what do you think? Bottger died of dissipation at the age of thirty-four.

Cleaver Mining Method.

The increasing depth to which it is necessary to go in following the vein at Kanab, or piters, they mined near the Kanab, river in Connecticut, some time ago caused the introduction of a novel method of mining. Wells from 50 to nearly 100 feet in depth are driven and two pipes are cut, four inches and the inner two inches in diameter are introduced. Water at a pressure of 40 pounds a square inch is forced down through the smaller pipe and then through the larger one bringing, with it about 5 per cent solid matter, of which 75 per cent is pure kaolin.

Get Ready for the Bugs

Look over the weapons for war against bugs and fungus pests and have them ready for use as soon as the plants get well into growth. Some of the pests are ready to grow as soon as the weather warms up. The cutworm is the most of all garden pests and the hardest to fight because he works like a submarine, is carried up in the ground, and is ready to eat the tender plants just below the surface. In spraying or hoeing early in the season look out for a dirty colored worm rolled up tight. Kill all such as they will in all probability be cut worms waiting to get into action.

The plant lice appear about as soon as the ground warms up and get well leaved out and will attack the lettuce. The current worm also starts early.

Have some about 100 pounds ready to use for bluing or chewing insect such as the cutworm, worm and nicotine preparation for the sucking insects such as the plant lice.

Insecticides are on the market which, mixing the technical material and kerosene, is the best to use on a hot, fast, peep. The other extreme may be mixed with kerosene and the whole range of insect and fungus outcrops controlled with spraying. It will do no harm to the plant, a combined spray even when only one class of pest is ordinarily expected. It will check any chance of others getting in their work.

It is spraying will save a great deal of trouble.

The Baltimore & Ohio baseball team staged a wonderful comeback in the final inning of a six frame affair at Fayette Field last evening and defeated the Jr. O. U. A. M. nine, 8-7. The game was called on account of darkness. The juniors got their big score in the first two innings when they drove Patrick from the mound. He was replaced by Lohr, who held the batters to two scattered blows.

The railroaders got a single tally in the opening frame and then touched Hrabak for enough safeties to score four tallies in the third. There was no more scoring until the final frame when the clerks pined their bats with such energy that the Junior twirler had to give way to Barnhart. The game had been lost, however, three more runs being scored that inning.

M. Coughenour and Baker of the Junior team scored three-base hits and another feature was when Bitter pulled one out of the dust in the final sixth, doubling Chip Francis off third. The score:

TORNADOES' MISPLAYS COSTLY, AND ELAINDALE WIN, 5-4

A wild throw to first and a passed ball by Conick, catcher for the North End Tornadoes, aided materially in the Elkindale victory at Poplar Grove last evening. The Tornadoes started right in the scoring in the first frame, putting one runner over, and tallied again in the fifth. In the seventh they seemed to have the game on ice when they counted two more, giving them the advantage, 4-1. In the final turn at bat however, the Elkindale men on the mound enabled them to score four runs. The home lads scored their other tally in the second.

Woods and Conick formed the visiting battery, and Rist Ryland and McCaslin and Cover worked for the visitors.

Pennsville will be the attraction at the Poplar Grove lot Friday, May 25.

HORSESHOE MARVEL MAKES GAME SEEM LIKE CHILD PLAY

C. C. Davis, the world's champion horseshoe pitcher, was the attraction at the horseshoe grounds of the W. A. Eddie Bible Class of the First Presbyterian Church yesterday afternoon and evening. He showed the members of the Eddie teams just what horseshoe pitching was and instructed the men in how to hold a shoe, the pitching position and how to toss. Davis proved beyond doubt that he is a wonder and he scored rings after rings. He ran up a number of consecutive runs and frequently called out as the shoe left his hand, "count that one," or "missed that one," not waiting until the iron had fallen to determine the success of his toss.

He was able to strike matches placed against the stake and did numbers of other fancy tosses. He was so accurate that frequently the shoes dropped over the stake without touching. In fact, Davis' manner of pitching made the making of rings seem merely play. Quite a crowd was on hand to see him start and later more persons arrived, taking the place of those who left. The marvel kept up his exhibition until dark.

Davis had a witty reply to many of the remarks of his witty audience. While the champ was "warming up," he missed a few rings and Dave Parkhill piped out: "That's all right. You're just like me and I miss 'em once in a while." Davis tickled the veteran West Slicker by replying: "We don't miss them very often though, do we?" Another man asked, while Davis was showing W. L. Wright how to hold the shoe before pitching: "And how do you hold your mouth when you're doing all that?" "You don't pucker this game with your mouth, mister," Davis retorted, and a laugh went up.

Ladder Tournament Of Tennis Club Is Creating Interest

With enthusiasm in ladder tournament sets developing among members of the Connelldale Tennis Association, interest in that event is on the increase, and every tournament day, namely, Monday, Wednesday and Friday there are numerous spectators on the courts to witness the various matches.

Yesterday three of these were played off. John H. Brown, challenged by James M. Driscoll, won in two sets, 6-2 and 6-1, the challenger dropping below Ralph P. Sliger. Brown challenged "Summer" Neld, defeating him 6-0 and 6-1, taking Neld's position. Another set between Frank W. Wright, Jr., and Al. Solsson was also played. This was the best set, the challenger won the match and moved above Wright. The scores were 6-4, 7-5 and 6-1. Wright won the first set 6-1. Solsson took the second 7-5 and then almost had a walkaway in the third Wright losing by hard smashes which drove the ball out of the court. Solsson took five straight games and then Wright saved himself from being beaten a love set by winning the sixth. The set ended, 6-1.

The Tornado baseball team will play the Owensdale baseball team Wednesday at Owensdale.

Babe Ruth made his first home run of the season in a game yesterday with St. Louis at the Polo Grounds.

"Red" Pritchard of Dunbar township, pitching for the Bethany College nine, had 15 strikeouts in a game against the Duquesne University in Pittsburg yesterday. The Buffaloes blanked their opponents, 11-0. Home runs were made by Pritchard, "Tuskie" Randsome, also of Dunbar township, and Welle. The Man O' War Club of East Liverpool, with which three Connelldale Independents, Manager Shomo, Patterson and Littleman, play, defeated the Woodbury team in a 6-0 hit, 7-0 run game pitched by their metropolitan, Jamison. The perfect record was slightly marred by one base on balls and one man being hit by the pitcher. The final score was 7-0.

The Layton baseball team defeated the Owensdale nine at Layton on Saturday. The score was 1-0. The Owensdale outfit is anxious to arrange more ball games. Teams desiring dates write to the "Ball Club" Owensdale, Pa.

The West Penn team and the Fayette Bakers will play a City League game at Fayette Field this evening.

The First Presbyterian Church team and the Evangelicals will meet in a Church League contest at May's Field this evening.

Chuck Garland, noted tennis player, is expected here some time within the next two weeks and a match between him and John Brown of the Connelldale Tennis Association will be arranged.

The Pittsburg Pirates laid hard against the ball in the game with Philadelphia yesterday and won a 5-0 victory. At the same time St. Louis lost to Boston in a 13 inning contest, dropping into third place, making the Pirates the runners-up. New York lost to Cincinnati, 7-2, and maintained a small lead over the Buccaneers.

The Mayfield club of the new Kitz League has signed the veteran Rudy Hinesworth as manager and second baseman.

"You'll be comfortable in here, Mc-Donald!" Bowyer shouted, slapping the old man on the back. "And don't you fear for Andy. I'll take mighty good care of her."

There followed his returning footsteps, and the sharp, sudden click of a key. Then came a furious rattling from within. Bowyer turned angrily. "Go to bed, you old fool!" he shouted. "Didn't I tell you I'd take care of her?"

The rattling ceased, but Molly heard the factor's feet shuffling as he stood

He Seized Her by the Hair.

Immediately behind his door, listening. Bowyer came back and slammed the door behind him. He put his hand on Molly's shoulder.

"I'm glad that's all settled at last," he said. "O—d, you've led me a chase, Molly! Hardest I've ever had; but I knew I'd get you in the end."

"When do you wish me to marry you?" asked Molly in a whisper.

Bowyer threw back his head and laughed. "Now you're talking!" he answered. "That's the point I was coming to. You're a business man, and I'm used to paying what I have to for what I want. But I've been thinking that when two people are agreed on the same thing, and there's no way out of it, unless you want the old man to—living—why, it might be necessary for you and me to get married at all."

He said his arm about her waist and bent his red face toward hers. For an instant the girl misunderstood. Then she leaped to her feet, her eyes blazing.

"Get out of my way, Tom Bowyer! If you try to stop me I'll murder you!" she screamed.

She ran round behind the door, snatched up the empty rifle, and as Bowyer followed her, brought down the stock with all her strength.

Had it struck her skull it would have knocked him unconscious. But in the nick of time he leaped aside, and it fell across the muscles of his neck and shoulders. With a howl of pain he wrenched the weapon from her hands. He bent her across the face again and again with his fists. He seized her by the hair, twisting it in his hand, and, forcing her head back, put his hands over her mouth.

She tried with all the strength she possessed to pry his hands away; the red and swollen face that leered into her own seemed to fill all space, like a huge, evil sun. With all the strength that remained in her she tore at the red hand over her mouth, and bit into it until her assistant yelled with pain. His grasp on her throat loosened for an instant. She drew in a deep gasp of air. Then she saw that the door was open.

Hackett was in the room. He was shouting to Bowyer, who released the half-conscious girl, stood up, and yelled in answer. "The old man was tugging frantically at his arm. There came the plunge of a heavy body against the door of the camp. Hackett sprang forward, and fell sprawling back under a terrific blow.

Wilton stood on the threshold.

CHAPTER XVI

Under Arrest.

Molly saw it all as if in a dream. The hideous presence of her assailant was still with her. Then she saw Hackett and Bowyer pull pistols from their pockets. And each act was extended in her mind and vision through an eternity, as if it would never end.

She sprang to the table, seized the oil lamp, and hurled it at their backs. It struck them fairly, sending them staggering before they had time to fire. Instantly the curtains before the windows were blown. A stream of burning oil shot across the door to the dining room, which began burning furiously, filling the room with smoke. Wilton and the two men closed.

There followed a furious struggle. The combatants rolled over and over, knocking over the chair, crashing into the walls. All the while McDonald hammered at the door and added his shouts to the uproar.

Molly dashed across the passage and released him. "They're murdering Wilton!" she cried. But the old man, hurrying out, only shouted distract-edly. Molly ran back. Hackett had Wilton by the throat, and, as she entered the room, Bowyer wrenched himself free, raised his pistol, and brought the butt crashing down on Wilton's head. Wilton toppled back into the blazing oil.

Bowyer aimed but Molly knocked up his arm, and the shot went wild. Bowyer turned upon Molly with a ghastly grin.

"D—n you!" he shouted, raising his pistol to strike her down. McDonald sprang between them. Hackett pulled up Bowyer and dragged him to the door. He whispered in his ear, and Bowyer cursed him. They clashed in the passage.

Molly was unconscious of what was transpiring. She had rushed to Wilton, and, grasping him by the shoulders, pulled him out of the flames. Seizing him in her arms she began wildly beating out the fire that was licking his clothes and hair. She tore off his blazing coat and with it extinguished them. Then, holding his head against her breast, she staggered toward the door through the thick smoke. McDonald at her side.

As she neared it Hackett leaped forward. He pushed the factor violently back and slammed it. An instant later there sounded the click of the key in the lock.

"The window! The window!" shouted the factor.

But that side of the room was a living wall of fire, and they seemed to be trapped hopelessly. The heat was becoming intolerable.

Molly ran behind the blazing divan, picked up the rifle, and drove a smashing blow against the back wall. It cracked; again and again she dashed the stock against it, until a section of the pine planks gave way under her assault.

Together they carried Wilton through into a room behind. Outside it was quite light; a gust of wind came through an open window and fanned the flames to fury. With a roar the fire leaped up the outer walls, and the whole front of the camp was ablaze.

Molly scrambled to the sill, clinging there, and dropped. The factor, leaning out, lowered Wilton's body. And he himself dropped to the ground beside the girl.

As he dropped she perceived, without realizing it, that he had used both arms and legs. The paralysis had left him.

SOME GOOD ADVICE

Strengthened by Connellsville Experience.

Kidney disease is too dangerous to neglect. At the first sign of backache, headache, dizziness or urinary disorders, you should give the weakened kidneys prompt attention. But little must talk things easier and use a reliable kidney tonic. There's no other kidney medicine so well recommended as Doan's Kidney Pills. Ask your neighbor! Connellsville people rely on them. Here's one of the many statements from Connellsville people.

Mrs. Wilson Stillwagon, 248 Fairview avenue, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have benefited myself and another member of my family. I had just an ordinary case of backache and was all run down. Doan's put me in good shape and I don't know of any other medicine I would be so glad to recommend." (Statement given March 16, 1914.)

On August 11, 1919, Mrs. Stillwagon added: "I still use Doan's Kidney Pills whenever I have need of a kidney medicine. They are a fine remedy and I can praise them just as highly now as I did in 1914."

At the Theatres

THE SOISSON.

"ONE ARABIAN NIGHT" which is being shown at this theatre, is a First National production with Pola Negri in the stellar role. Pola Negri is the star of this picture, which, it is declared, outclasses in every way "Passion" and "Gypsy Blood," the mammoth productions which were responsible for the world-wide fame she has attained. This trio of pictures was produced by Ernst Lubitsch, the master director. Much of the action takes place in the harem of the sheik, where a hundred beautiful young maidens loiter away the hours on silken pillows of every shade and hue. Despite the close guard which is kept on the harem, romance invades it—and strikes Zuliska, the favorite. Now-a-days, the handsome young sheik merchant, on a visit to the palace to sell his wares, has seen the bewitching favorite and has fallen deeply in love with her. And Zuliska's heart likewise has been captured by the youth. Therefore he pays frequent visits to the palace, but has to content his yearning with short glimpses of her on the balcony. But love will find a way, and the inmates of the harem assist Zuliska to smuggle her lover into the sacred precincts. But when they are discovered the enraged sheik fates steps in and saves them from death at the point of the ruler's dagger. And so the favorite of the harem finds the romance and happiness which she had craved, but which seemed impossible of attainment.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday Richard Barthelmess will be seen in "Tol'able David."

THE PARAMOUNT.

"GYPSY PASSION," the feature picture today, was adapted from by Jean Rich Richey's famous story. It is a notable film from several points of view, but everything else is overshadowed by the pathetic interest attached to it from the fact that the leading character is played by Mme. Gabrielle Rejane. It is a most striking demonstration of the uncanny power of the screen to perpetuate for all the traits and gestures of those who are no more. As for the performance of the great comedienne of modern France, it was in every sense worthy of Mme. Rejane. Never had she been seen to greater advantage. Mimicry was always Rejane's strong point. Nothing pleased her more than when the author purposely left blanks in the play to be filled in by her with her marvellously expressive play-act. It is almost as if she had been predestined for the cinema, but had come into the world 40 or 50 years too soon. Strangely enough, it was as "La Glue," a part she created in the early stages at the Ambigu Theatre in Paris, that she won one of her earliest triumphs. Tomorrow and Thursday William Fairbanks will be seen in "Go Get Him."

THE ORPHEUM.

"THE GILDED LILY," a Paramount picture with Mae Murray in the leading role, is the feature picture today and tomorrow at this theatre. The story was written especially for Mae Murray and presents her at her best. The story fits her like a glove and presents her in the role in which she first became famous—an dancer. All of the scenes are laid in New York. Lily Drake, dancer of the Club Royale, is the type of girl that is all sham and rouge on the exterior, but real and true when the tawdry and tinsel are off. She is sought by many men, including a typical New York man-about-town and a youth from the country. In the contest between them to win her hand and in the final incidents, Miss Deranger has given an unusual twist that is declared to be entirely original and will place the picture in the front rank for its story value. Miss Murray executes a number of unusual dances with her customary grace and charm. In the cast are Charles Gerard and Lowell Sherman, two notable screen villains.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday Marion Davis will be seen in "Doried Treasure."

GIRLS! LEMONS

BLEACH SKIN WHITE

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of harmless and delightful lemon bleach. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day, then shortly note the beauty and whiteness of your skin. Famous stage beauties use this lemon lotion to bleach and bring that soft, clear, rosy-white complexion, also as a freckle, sunburn, and tan bleach because it doesn't irritate. Advertisement.
